

Dewey Commutes Gentile Sentence

New York, July 7 (AP)—One of the three convicted slayers of boss stevedore Anthony Hinz has been saved from the chair—partly because he "talked" about waterfront crime.

The other two are slated to die tonight.

On the eve of the scheduled execution, Daniel Gentile, 40, an ex-boxer, was saved yesterday by order of Gov. Thomas L. Dewey.

The other convicted men, John M. Dunn, 36, of Queens, and Andrew Sheidman, 56, of Jersey City, N. J., are slated to go to the chair around 10 p. m. (E.S.T.) at Sing Sing prison.

Gentile got his last-minute commutation to life imprisonment from the governor on a recommendation from District Attorney Frank Hogan.

Gentile, Hogan said, has helped in investigations of crime in general along New York's sprawling waterfront.

"At present," the district attorney wrote in his recommendation, "it is not possible to say whether the information received from him will result in indictments."

"We can state, however, that he has given valuable clues and background material."

"It is noteworthy that he has given this assistance without requesting any commitment with respect to clemency."

The three men were convicted of the Jan. 7, 1947, shooting of Hinz in the boss stevedore's Greenwich Village apartment house.

Hinz died three weeks later in a hospital.

Gentile Hogan said got his reprieve after "further investigation and consideration."

He cited "the prior history of criminal violence on Gentile's part, and said evidence showed he was not armed at the time of the killing. He also told Dewey he thought Gentile had no personal motive for the slaying."

We believe that he participated in the crime solely by procurement of his co-defendants," Hogan wrote. "While this circumstance makes no legal justification for his crime, it would seem pertinent on the question of leniency."

Last fall Sheidman made an affidavit from Sing Sing in which he tried to clear Dunn and Gentile of the crime. He said he and two other men, one dead and the other missing, killed Hinz.

A judge refused to set aside convictions of Dunn and Gentile. He said Sheidman was making "an abortive effort to salvage from an inevitable doom his fellow murderers."

The state produced a statement allegedly made by Hinz just before he died in which Sheidman, Dunn and Gentile were named as the killers.

British Ships Face U. S. Port Boycott

New York, July 7 (AP)—British ships—now in the midst of the lush summer season—are faced with a possible maritime union boycott in eastern United States ports.

The boycott is threatened by many seamen and longshore workers in retaliation for a block ad-against Canadian ships in Great Britain's ports.

The A. F. L. Maritime Trades Council of New York last night said an eventual boycott may be clamped down but declared an earlier announcement of a blockade would begin last midnight.

The council comprises A. F. L. seamen and dock workers in this area.

The boycott will become "necessary," the council said, if British waterfront men continue refusing to work ships under contract to the Canadian district of the A. F. L.

Seafarers International Union.

The council's co-chairmen, Paul Hall and Morris Weisberger, said the British boycott came from "action of the Communist party."

Joseph Ryan, president of the big A. F. L. International Longshoremen's Association, said his union would support a boycott of British shipping here if the S. I. U. asked for help.

Hal C. Banks, S. I. U. international representative earlier had said in Montreal, Canada, that the boycott would begin last midnight, affecting some 120 British ships.

Greek Communications.

Athens (AP)—The U. S. will help the Greek government put the country's telecommunication system on a sound technical and financial basis. The project was arranged at the request of the Greek government. Six American technicians from the International Telephone and Telegraph Co. will give technical assistance. They will study the present system and will help a ten-year plan for its expansion and improvement.

Academy, Kings Point, N. Y., was passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate. Previous legislation authorized such degrees upon accreditation of the academy by the Association of American Universities. The association has withdrawn from the field of accreditation and the bill would eliminate specific reference to a particular accrediting organization.

2 Foxes Declared Rabid After Tests

Two foxes shot one after the other by a resident in the Town of Marlborough were diagnosed as rabid on July 1 by the Division of Laboratories and Research of the New York State Health Department. This is the first time that two rabid animals have been shot together since rabies was known to exist in Ulster county in July 1948.

A total of three rabid animals have been found in this same immediate vicinity in the Town of Marlborough. This fact leads health department officials to believe that there will probably be more outbreaks of the disease before it is brought under control.

Both foxes had acted quite unafraid of human beings. "Loss of fear of human beings seems to be one of the characteristics of a rabid fox," Dr. Gilbert F. Hoppens, county public health veterinarian, said. Both foxes were near a chicken coop when they were shot.

"We again advise all dog owners to have their pets immunized against rabies," Dr. Hoppens stated. "The merits of last year's immunization program for dogs seems to be borne out by the fact that very few dogs have been afflicted with the disease in Ulster county," continued Dr. Hoppens. "There are cases on record in health department files where immunized dogs bitten by rabid foxes did not develop the disease," Dr. Hoppens said.

REPERAT OF FAMINE

Famine, from the beginning of recorded history, has been one of the world's greatest causes of suffering and of political instability. According to the studies of some economists, these starving years may never come again on a grand scale.

India has started on a three-year program for self-sufficiency in food. In the Philippines a ten-year rice program involving land reform is underway. Rice exports from Siam, Burma and Korea are one-third higher so far this year than last, owing partly to the fact that many rice-eating Orientals have been willing to supplement their diet with bread grains. Western technique, materials and financial help have aided in bringing about these improved conditions.

Large grain crops in Europe this year are expected to nearly, if not quite, balance the drought losses in some other areas.

Over-all planning is perhaps the answer to the problem of recurring famines. Soil conservation, modern agricultural methods and appliances, loans where needed, and in some cases new eating habits, all help. Aid to countries plagued by drought or other misfortunes, from those which have prospered, is necessary. Most important is the treatment of the problem as a unit; no country should starve alone and none should waste its individual surplus when it is needed elsewhere.

FOR REPRISAL ONLY

The interesting suggestion that the atomic bomb be officially declared a weapon of reprisal only has been laid before the Senate by Senator Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont. It seems simple enough at first glance—just state that the United States will use the atomic bomb only if some other power first uses it against us—but actually it is a very involved matter.

As a people we probably have not yet fully realized the deep responsibility we shouldered by making and using the first atomic bomb. We do realize it enough to know that we would not want to have on our shoulders the responsibility for starting an atomic war.

Neither would we want to create a situation which would be an invitation to a potential enemy, knowing he could strike the first blow freely, to attempt conquest in a single paralyzing stroke, using atomic weapons.

The idea advanced by Senator Flanders, if it could be expanded into a world declaration instead of a national one, follows a long-held concept of a means to prevent not only the use of a particular weapon but war itself. If all nations capable of using the atomic bomb would determine to use it only in reprisal, obviously it would never be used. And if all nations would determine not to go to war except in defense against attack, no attack would ever be made. This is an old idea, but skeptics have yet to point out any flaw except the difficulty of achieving it.

The top-sided victory of the Liberal Party in the Canadian national elections seems to add to other indications in the United States and elsewhere as to the general trend of politics in the democratic portion of the world. Middle-of-the-road liberalism is still on the upward segment of the political curve. The liberalism of the Canadian majority party is definitely a moderate liberalism. The parties representing extremes of view, both left and right, lost heavily by comparison with the last Canadian elections.

A harrowing decision is whether to buy a television set, or put the money in a new car.

DESPOILMENT

It is in the hot months that we pay the most obvious price for tolerating the dumping of sewage and other forms of filth into many of our streams and lakes. It is a tantalizing thing to look at a cool stream or pond, on a steaming comfortless day, and realize that our own filth has made the water unsafe to plunge into. It is a terrifying thing to know that our children, less inhibited

'These Days'

THE FBI

Out of the various espionage trials and hearings has developed a curious and most disturbing attack on the FBI. It did not start with the trial of Judith Coplon, which only added fuel to a blazing propaganda. It goes back to 1934 when the FBI began to search out the spies planted here by foreign countries, the corrupt among our own people who, for pay, served foreign masters, or who, for idealistic ends, sought to destroy the liberties of our people.

In our country, it is difficult to do such work, as is the duty of the FBI, for, while we desire safety, we eschew the police state. Public opinion would never tolerate such a police organization as the N.K.V.D. of Soviet Russia. We demand of the FBI that it produce all the results of police protection without using coercive means and without interfering with those guarantees of rights provided by the Constitution. The American formula is correct and the FBI has not transgressed it.

Were this country faced by a conflict of ideas alone, the FBI would have no function to perform. Difference of opinion, of judgment, of decision is characteristic of our way of life. In fact, the constitution is devoted to defense and protection of these differences.

We are, however, faced by something altogether outside the realm of ideas. We have become the stomping ground of a vast international conspiracy for the world revolution and into our country has come an army of disciplined agents of that conspiracy who seek to achieve not the overthrow of our government but its seizure and subordination to the Kremlin. Were it only a conflict between the ideas of Thomas Jefferson and the ideas of Karl Marx, between the economics of Friedrich Engels and the economics of Adam Smith, we could rest, while the professors fight it out, as they have done for centuries.

It is more than that. It is resistance to conquest. I have recently been reading the biography of Angelica Balabanoff, the first secretary of the Third International, Lenin's weapon for world revolution and conquest. In her 'My Life as a Rebel' Angelica Balabanoff describes how Lenin tricked her into accepting the secretaryship of the Third International in order to use her reputation among left-wing socialists, which at the moment was better than his. He said to her—these are her words:

"Party discipline exists for you too, dear comrade. The central committee has decided." (When Lenin had decided something before the central committee had ratified his decision, he usually anticipated their action in this fashion so as to avoid superfluous discussion.)

"I know it would be useless to argue."

Then she wrote:

"I was most disturbed at this time and during the coming year to find how many of our agents and representatives were individuals long discredited in the Labour movement abroad. They were chosen because they had nothing in common with the Labour movement and could, therefore, obey the most contradictory and outrageous orders quite mechanically and with no sense of responsibility. Adventurers, opportunists, even former Red-baiters, all were grist to Lenin's mill. They departed on secret missions, supplied with enormous sums."

These methods have not changed. What a disillusioned person that fine woman, Angelica Balabanoff, has become, watching the conspiracy for power known as Leninism!

And it is this conspiracy that the FBI has to watch and note in this country. There are about 70,000 Communist party members in the United States and ten times as many friends and sympathizers and innumerable innocents who, for one reason or another, do phases of the party's work. Plying these activities together is the job of the FBI. And "plying together" is the correct phrase to use. These people do not blame a trail. A little inkling appears here and there and it may take months and years to discover a pattern of activity or the affiliations of an individual. All the FBI has for all its work, of which this is only a part, are about 5,000 operatives. It has done a magnificent job without impairing our liberties and those who attack it often are those who fear surveillance.

That Body of Yours

CORONARY THROMBOSIS

A healthy, middle aged man felt a sudden pain under his breast bone, but thinking it was gas in upper part of stomach tried to forget about it. As the pain persisted for a couple of hours and did not move in any direction, he called up a friend who was a heart specialist and requested an immediate examination. After a careful examination including the use of the electrocardiograph, the doctor assured the patient that his pain was due to a clot or cramp in the large intestine in the portion which passed across the abdomen from the right to the left side. The patient was naturally relieved and the pain passed away an hour later.

I believe all of us with a pain under breast bone lasting for hours would have suspected an attack of coronary thrombosis, but we are now learning that there are a number of conditions, most of them harmless, that can be taken for the acute heart attack, coronary thrombosis, in which a small blood vessel is closed or partly closed and so is not supplying the heart muscle itself with enough pure blood to supply the work of the heart.

In the 'American Practitioner,' Philadelphia, Dr. H. B. Sprague states that there are a number of conditions such as indigestion of foods, disturbance of movements of the intestines, liver, and stomach, due to emotional upsets, that, if not carefully investigated, may be mistaken for attacks of coronary thrombosis and the pain diagnosed as angina pectoris which is always present in acute heart attacks. As conditions mistaken for angina pectoris are mentioned—1, herpes zoster (shingles) with pain occurring several months before the skin eruption appears; 2, cardiospasm, spasm of the tube (oesophagus) carrying food to stomach; 3, ulcer of the oesophagus; and 4, cardiac or heart neurosis when the individual fears he has heart disease and this fear actually causes the pain in chest.

In addition to these four common conditions that may be mistaken for coronary thrombosis, Dr. Sprague quotes the report of an outstanding heart specialist. He named twenty-eight conditions that had been listed as coronary attacks and referred to heart specialists.

Despite the fact that there are so many conditions that may be mistaken for coronary thrombosis, if a pain occurs under the breast bone, see, call on or call in your family doctor at once. Don't take chances!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

Washington—Latest gadget the American Medical Association is using in the pressure campaign against federal health insurance is a post card, distributed from doctors' offices, which threatens vote retaliations against members of Congress who support the health program.

The card reads: "As for myself and family, which consists of — votes, we are unalterably opposed to compulsory health insurance or any other legislation which tends to regiment our population and socialize our government."

The sender fills in the blank with the number of votes in his family. Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, a leading sponsor of health insurance, reports he has received hundreds of the stereotyped cards. Some have also been mailed to President Truman.

One sender, whose wife recently underwent an operation, wrote Pepper that he was "compelled" by the doctor performing the operation to fill out and sign the card. Another reported that he feared he would "antagonize my doctor and nurse" if he didn't comply with their wishes.

Both these individuals informed Senator Pepper that they strongly supported the health insurance program. Similar cards also are being distributed by Florida insurance salesmen.

Old Soldiers
Five hundred forgotten soldiers, who survived past wars but are victims of old age, are waiting to get into the National Soldiers Home at Washington, D. C.

But there's no room. Those on the inside would like to make room by building new quarters. They have plenty of money—$35,000,000, every cent contributed through the years by enlisted men. But the money is held in trust by the Treasury Department, and the ex-soldiers can't get it out without an act of Congress.

Though this money belongs to the soldiers and not the taxpayers, the Budget Bureau has turned down a request to release $16,700,000 to expand the Soldiers' Home. The bureau's recommendation has influenced Congress to refuse use of the funds.

Threat to Berlin Airlift
The public was never told how the Bendix strike at South Bend, Ind., involving fewer than 6,000 workers, came closer to grounding the Berlin airlift than the Russians ever did. That was the reason the Air Force urgently summoned both sides to the Pentagon last week to settle the strike at a dramatic, all-night session.

There, for the first time, is the inside story: After negotiations broke down at South Bend, Secretary of Air Force Stuart Symington personally invited Bendix boss Malcolm Ferguson to Washington. Simultaneously he sent an Air Force plane to Detroit to pick up Walter Reuther, chief of the United Auto Workers.

The two men were brought in to see Symington separately. The Secretary of the Air Force warned both that plane production would be crippled, the Berlin lift forced down for lack of key parts—if the strike continued.

It was Reuther who suggested they sit down on the spot and settle the strike. "With all this talent from both labor and management," he declared, "if we can't settle this strike, then it just plain can't be settled. And I'm willing to sweat it out."

Ferguson was brought in, and the two men met face to face. "I am convinced that by using the democratic processes," Reuther offered, "we can settle this strike, and by doing it in that way, we will enable the Air Force to continue to defend the democratic processes we are using."

Ferguson promptly agreed. Assistant Secretary of Labor John Gibson also was called in, offered to serve as arbitrator. For several hours the two sides haggled behind closed doors, took time out only for quick snacks. Ferguson kept a Pentagon kitchen open all night to accommodate them.

By 3 a. m. the negotiators were still deadlocked. Finally Reuther blurted out: "The thing that bothers me is how a situation that has dragged out ten weeks and should have been settled at the outset, yet has been handled with good faith and good will and intelligence, could have gotten so 'snarled' up as it is tonight."

Reuther used one word that can't be repeated here which caused the tense, solemn group to burst out in laughter. This broke the ice and started the negotiators on the road to settlement. By 11 a. m. almost 24 hours after they started negotiating, an agreement was reached, ending one of the most critical strikes since V-J Day—another triumph for the democratic processes.

Key Congressman
The President paid high praise to Democratic Representative Mike Kirwan of Ohio, militant battler for public power legislation, in a chat with another Mike the other day—Representative Mansfield of Montana.

Mansfield reported that the Interior Department's public power and reclamation program, which Kirwan navigated through the House, faced a "very tough" battle in the Senate.

"I'm for you all the way," commented Truman. "You know, the Interior bill was the best we've ever got through the House. Mike Kirwan deserves the major credit. He fought it through the appropriations subcommittee, through the full committee and finally through the House over the protests of the private power lobby."

"I think the world of Mike," added the President. "In my opinion, he's one of the most outstanding and ablest legislators we have in Congress."

Solution of House Committee Is as Much in Error in One Direction as Senate Was in Other

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 7—When the House Armed Services Committee decided that it would favor a unification bill that eliminated all possibility of a military dictatorship, this was tantamount to saying that the bill passed by the Senate could conceivably permit such a contingency to develop. This is because the Senate proposed a chairman of the joint chiefs of staff who would outrank every other person in the armed services and who would have the power to recommend policies to the secretary of defense irrespective of the views of the joint chiefs.

But the solution now proposed by the House committee—namely to put a civilian in as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff—was just as extremely in the other direction.

The joint chiefs is a military council. It has been set up to render military advice to the President of the United States, who is the commander-in-chief of the army and navy. There is no need of a civilian to preside at such meetings. Few if any, civilians would understand what was going on except in a superficial way. In fact, the head of the army, technically speaking, doesn't know much about the navy and the head of the air force isn't at all familiar with what the navy does or how it functions and, of course, neither the army nor the navy chiefs is at all expert on what makes a real air force click.

Fortunately for the United States, its air force is the greatest the world has ever known. The U. S. Navy pines for supreme command over all navies having acquired the position and prestige that the British navy enjoyed for centuries. The U. S. Army has demonstrated in two world wars that no finer soldiers have been developed by any other nation.

With these great military assets and with a trained corps of officers in each service, military advice is not lacking. What is lacking is a method of channeling this advice from each service so that the President and the secretary of defense may be able to make decisions free from inter-service rivalry and jealousy.

The country generally has been fed a superficial viewpoint. The argument has been raised that all a secretary of defense had to do was "to knock heads together" and billions would be saved. This is one of those fantastic impressions that get considerable currency because it fits a preconceived notion.

Actually the joint chiefs of staff is a military body that functioned so well during the war that victory was won ahead of schedule and with a minimum loss of lives. It is true that the deliberations of the joint chiefs were sometimes prolonged. But the differences of opinion were rarely on what each service should do. The debates rather were concerned with how power should be allocated to the Pacific when the European war front was being given priority.

In peacetime, of course, the urge to agree is not as strong. Especially in each service wishes to develop along lines that it considers effective for fighting a theoretical war on a date that nobody can foretell.

To resolve such differences by appointing a virtual dictator is an easy way out but in the end might prove costly. It could save a few dollars and ruin the morale of any or all of the services. Individuality and specialization are characteristic of each armed service. To allow someone whose chief experience has been in operating tanks or naval vessels to tell the Air Force how to design or fly its planes is as unwise as to have the head of the Air Force tell the Navy how to design its cruisers or its aircraft carriers.

A solution is available to those who really want one. Such a solution already has been written down in two remarkable documents unanimously agreed to by the heads of the three armed services. These are called the Key West and Newport agreements. They spell out clearly what each service shall do.

Using the Key West and Newport agreements as a charter, the joint chiefs need no permanent chairman. The senior officer of the three members could preside, and this means a rotation of the chairmanship. His function were merely to see that business was transacted and reports presented to the Secretary of Defense, there would be no need for any additional member or permanent chairman of higher rank. As long as each service is to decide how it will use its men and use its manpower to carry out the specified missions, there need be no conflicting areas of authority.

The real problem comes, of course, in allocating the money. How much shall each service get? How many missions and roles? The problem is not novel. For years each service has submitted its recommendations to the director of the budget, which means that the President has decided on the total military budget and on the allocations to each service. It is such an important decision that only the constitutional commander-in-chief, who is elected by the people, should make it. That responsibility cannot be delegated to any cabinet officer or deputy. And Congress, representing the people, has the final say on all the allocations made in the budget.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, July 6—For all the money that he spent on publicity for his projects, Harold Ickes somehow seems to have gone bashful about his charming girlfriend, Ruth Gruber, the dead-head employee on the payroll of the Alaska Railroad, who got $6,000 a year and $7 a day subsistence for composing magazine articles about the scenery and kindred subjects. "This lady was mentioned in a memorandum introduced in the trial of Judith Coplon, another cheery and, to some susceptible, irresistible bundle of bureaucratic femininity. The memorandum, discovered by the F.B.I. in the purse of Miss Coplon, and introduced at her trial, said that "Gruber" was reported to have been a "contact" of F. A. Garbini of the Soviet embassy in Washington. Mr. Ickes reacted violently. He said that if Ruth was a Red he was a hotfoot, an outburst of racial bigotry against an underprivileged minority which the human rights division of the United Nations surely will make note of. Here we have had a hotfoot-baiter in our midst all the time, serving on committees and subscribing to angry resolutions to encourage his secret anti-Semitism. Wait until the Anti-Defamation League hears about this!

As to whether Miss Gruber is a Red, whatever that is, you may require something better than the word of Mr. Ickes which, in my rate of exchange, continues to fluctuate between Confederate dollars and Romanoff rubles. But the very charming lady herself, as a woman, is not a Communist. As of ten years ago, how many of us were not? I saw a book called "I Went to the Soviet Arctic," left me with an impression of affection for the Soviets. On page 107 she tells us that she worked on a paper called Arctik's Bolshevik in the Port of Igarka, although only as a guest.

Rain Needed by Central Hudson

Raindrops are literally "Pennies from Heaven" to the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corporation. For rainfall determines stream flow. And when streams are full and flowing swiftly, Central Hudson's giant generators spin out vast quantities of electric power; when streams are low, hydroelectric stations stand idle.

Since the beginning of the drought, Central Hudson's hydroelectric stations have generated only one-quarter of the electricity they normally generate. The average production for the month of June is 4,800,000 kilowatt-hours but this year June produced only 1,236,000 kilowatt-hours. This loss of power is vitally important. Each kilowatt of electricity not generated by water power must be purchased from utility companies which have an electric surplus. And this runs into real money. At the same time the company's hydroelectric stations must be kept open and manned so as to maintain generating equipment in perfect working condition. In view of all this it is no wonder that Central Hudson engineers, like their friends on the farms, are scanning the skies a dozen times each day in the hope of seeing again the cloud formations that mean rain—and lots of rain.

The cottontail rabbit is hunted not only by man, but by hawks, owls, foxes, weasels, cats, dogs and any carnivorous animal.

Hudson Canyon Extends 225 Miles Into Sea Depths

Pallsades, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—The cliffs and pallsades of the Hudson river valley run 225 miles out to sea.

The canyon gives a gorgeous new view (for fish) that shows the 90-mile stretch of high banks visible along the river itself from New York to Kingston.

Columbia University geologists today announced they had discovered the canyon stretches at least 225 miles southeast into the Atlantic Ocean. At that point it is three miles wide and 500 feet deep. It cuts that gap where the ocean floor lies 12,000 feet under the waves.

The canyon may extend even farther, says Dr. Maurice Ewing, professor of geophysics. He and other oceanographers now are out at sea taking more soundings to learn where it goes. The soundings are done by echo devices.

The Hudson canyon or valley had been known to stretch 120 miles out to sea. The new portion was found and traced late in June on a voyage of the Atlantis, laboratory ship of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution.

They found it runs more than 100 miles farther, on a gently sloping plain beyond the continental shelf.

A sample of the ocean bottom showed about 10 feet of well-rounded gravel and shell fragments, covered by more than two feet of deep sea mud. It was analyzed at the Lamont Geological Observatory here.

The big question is—how was the canyon formed? Other famous rivers also have these subterranean canyons extending from their mouths.

One theory is that it was cut on what was once dry land many thousands of years ago. Later the sea made a land grab, and a theft of scenic beauty, as land masses sank and water levels rose after the glacial age.

In that case, New York city once was not a seaport, nor even useful as a river port. For it would have been too far up the sloping Hudson.

Another theory is that it may have been scoured out when the sea was much shallower. Heavy muddy waters from the river may still be doing some scouring in places along the ocean bottom.

Some rivers changed course during the glacial age. Maybe the Hudson did, too.

Over Million Loss

Bangor, Me., July 7 (AP)—A quarter mile stretch of industrialized river front was blackened by an explosion-studded fire early today. Property owners figured losses at $1,500,000. Five fuel plants, a bus garage, and store houses of a hardware and a plumbing supply firm were leveled. Drums of gasoline and oil caused the explosions. Four big gasolene and oil tanks were in danger for more than three hours. At times the flames licked the sides of the tanks. Five fire departments won their spectacular battle shortly before 2 a. m. They stopped the flames just north of the big Maine Central Railroad freight sheds.

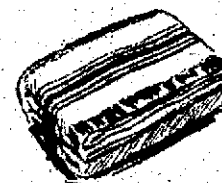

The American Museum of Natural History, New York, houses the largest study collection of birds in the world, numbering 750,000 specimens.

U. S. HOUSEKEEPER—Jesse Larson, former head of the War Assets Administration, has been named by President Truman to be director of the new General Services Administration. The new agency, a Hoover Commission proposal, will handle all "housekeeping" functions of the federal government.

Committee Won't Defend Reds in Teaching Ranks

Boston, July 7 (P)—The Tenure and Academic Freedom Committee of the National Education Association served notice today that it will not attempt to defend known Communists in teaching ranks.

The committee chairman, Martin W. Essex, said it will not try to protect the tenure of avowed or proved Communists fired from public schools of the nation.

"If a teacher is charged with being a Communist, the committee on tenure will investigate the truth of the charges," said Essex, who is superintendent of schools of Lakewood, Ohio.

"If he admits he is a Communist, or if it is proved he holds Communist party membership, we will not defend him."

Essex's statement was made after delegates attending the association's annual convention adopted a section of a report declaring that "members of the Communist party of the United States should not be employed as teachers."

The section was adopted after American Legion Commander S. Perry Brown and John R. Norton of Teachers College, Columbia University, told the 3,000 delegates representing 825,000 association members that the eyes of the nation were watching their vote.

Norton was chairman of the committee which submitted the report on the elimination of the Communists from the teaching profession. Action may be taken today on the full report.

There were only a sprinkling of "no" votes when President Hubert Studebaker called for the convention's decision on the issue.

In adopting the Communist ban section of the report, the teachers also barred "advocacy" but not study of "communism" or any other form of dictatorship.

This declaration was approved. "The whole spirit of free American education will be subverted unless teachers are free to think for themselves."

Spaulding Rules Board Exceeded Specific Authority

Albany, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—The state education commissioner ruled today that a Westchester county school board had exceeded its authority by indirectly terminating a Valhalla teacher's tenure rights.

Francis T. Spaulding decided, however, that there had been sufficient evidence before a board of Union Free School District No. 5 to sustain charges brought in 1948 against Mrs. Jennie M. Delaney, a teacher in the district since 1932.

The school district is located in the towns of North Castle, Valhalla and Greenburgh.

Spaulding ordered the board to reinstate Mrs. Delaney's tenure and to consider "other penalties."

Charges were filed June 22, 1948 against Mrs. Delaney by William H. Green, a school board member.

Green claimed Mrs. Delaney had been insubordinate to Supervising Principal Herman L. Ronnel, that she failed to stay in her classrooms during school hours, that she spread "slandorous and defamatory" statements about the board of education and individual members, and that she "threatened bodily harm" to another teacher.

She was tried on the charges by a committee of four board members. On Aug. 31, 1948, the committee found her guilty of insubordination, conduct unbecoming a teacher, incompetent and inefficient service and neglect of duty. It recommended that she be dismissed.

On Sept. 8, 1948, the board adopted the committee report and dismissed Mrs. Delaney.

At the same meeting, however, the board adopted a resolution in which it rehired the teacher at her former annual salary of $3,355, but placed her on probation for a period of not less than three years.

Found Woman Guilty

Spaulding wrote in his decision that the board had found Mrs. Delaney guilty "on charges which might have justified her dismissal."

"Instead," he added, "the board agreed that a lesser penalty was appropriate."

"In providing for this lesser penalty the board took action which had the effect of continuing the appellant in employment with her teacher assignment and her salary undisturbed, but of abrogating her right of tenure."

"There is no provision in the statute which permits the withdrawal of tenure rights to be so used. The state makes it quite clear that only through and as a result of a teacher's dismissal can her tenure rights be abrogated by a board of education, and that dismissal means, in this connection, the unequivocal and permanent termination of her services."

The state's tenure law provides that after a "teacher has served a satisfactory probationary period she may not be dismissed except for cause."

Spaulding said the board had "other penalties at its command."

He said that if the board chose to continue Mrs. Delaney in service "it possessed authority to impose such penalties as censure and reprimand, fine, or suspension without pay for a reasonable period."

Spaulding ruled that Mrs. Delaney should be reinstated on tenure as of September 8, 1948, the date of her dismissal, and that the question of the penalty to be imposed upon her should be reconsidered by the board.

To Dedicate New Home

Effingham, Ill.—An elaborate two-day program was held on June 18 and 19 here of the new clubhouse of Effingham Post 120 of The American Legion. The dedication address was made by Department Commander William Burns.

Vaughan Declares 300 in Washington Negotiate Contract

Washington, July 7 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, military aid to the President, knows of "about 300 persons in Washington" who engaged in contract negotiations.

He said so here last night in response to questions by reporters as to his views on reports that a so-called "five per center" had used "influence" to gain government contracts for firms willing to pay.

Vaughan did not identify any of the 300.

The questioning took place at the railway station where newsman met Vaughan on his return from a 19-day vacation to Guatemala.

Vaughan also was questioned about the financing of his vacation trip.

"That is nobody's business and you can quote me," Vaughan said.

Vaughan went on to explain, however, that there were 11 persons in the vacationing party and each paid $841 fare for the trip. The boat trip was aboard a ship of the United Fruit Company.

The general declined to discuss a scheduled congressional investigation of so-called "five per centers." Paul Grindle, a Massachusetts manufacturer, set off the investigation by saying that James V. Hunt, a management counselor, had claimed to have influence with Vaughan and some other government officials.

(The New York Herald Tribune quoted Grindle as saying that he agreed to pay Hunt a fee plus 5 per cent gross on any government contract he got.

TO MARRY

Hunt was denounced as a liar anyone who says he tried to sell influence in getting government contracts.)

Minoa Legion Post Home

Minoa, N. Y.—Ground was broken here during an all-day program for the modern new clubhouse of the Minoa Legion Post 1102 of The American Legion. Royal O'Day, vice-president of the Syracuse, N. Y., Junior Chamber of Commerce, was the principal speaker. The ground-breaking ceremony was preceded by a parade. The new American Legion home will be adjacent to Rees Field. It will include a large auditorium, kitchen, dining room, dressing rooms and showers, lounges, card rooms and offices.

Wolves once ranged over most of the North American continent.

Farm Bureaus Are To Talk July 14-16

Ithaca, July 7—The annual conference of Farm Bureaus in the northeast will be held July 14-16 on the campus of Cornell University here.

E. S. Foster, general secretary of the 88,000-member New York State Farm Bureau Federation, the host organization, announces that this is the first time the conference is being held in this state.

"Every year," Foster states, "Farm Bureau members of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, West Virginia, Maryland, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Vermont meet to discuss the problems of agriculture in the northeast as well as review their programs and accomplishments. We also consider national and world problems and events as they affect agriculture in the northeast."

Nationally prominent agricultural leaders have been scheduled for the three-day program, Foster said.

Farmers unable to attend the three-day meeting can hear H. E. Babcock, former general manager of the Cooperative G.L.F. Exchange, on the FM network at 12:30 p. m., Thursday, July 14. His subject will be "The Role of Agriculture in the Northeast."

Saturday, July 16 at 12:30 p. m., Allan B. Kline, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, will discuss "Current Happenings."

Other speakers are members of the Cornell University faculty and other A.F.B.F. leaders.

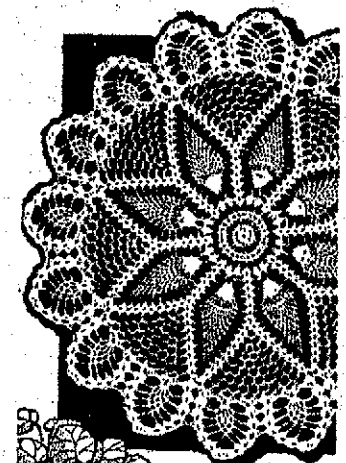

There will also be concurrent programs for the Older Rural Youth and Home Bureau members.

The conference is open to all Farm Bureau, Home Bureau and Older Rural Youth members in the state. All interested in attending can make reservations through their local Farm and Home Bureau association offices for room accommodations and the banquet.

Ellenville Market Robbery Reported

Between $90 and $100 in cash, two hams and a quantity of cigarettes were stolen from the Giant Market in Ellenville sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning, Ellenville police reported.

No evidence of a break was discovered in the building. Police theorized that the thief entered through an open transom in the rear of the building, which is located at Canal street and Yankee place.

The theft was discovered Wednesday morning when employees reported for work. Investigation is being conducted by Ellenville police with assistance from the Ulster county sheriff's office.

Very often I repeat that the most important lesson to learn in bridge is to count your tricks. I want to modify that statement and say you must learn to count your opponents' tricks, as well as your own.

Today's lesson hand brings out that point very well. South has the opening lead. He heard his partner bid diamonds, and in spite of that, the opponents went to three no trump. His first problem is, should he open a spade? Definitely not. He does not have any top cards in that suit.

In the second place, it looks as if his partner put in the diamond bid only to direct a lead, in case the opponents did get into a no trump contract. The question now is, which diamond should South lead? It might help to drop an honor card in the opponent's hand later on by not leading the king. Therefore, I believe South should open the four-spot.

His partner will play the ten and East lets him hold the trick. North returns the queen of diamonds. East plays low, and here is where the lesson comes in.

Count those tricks. If declarer has the ace of clubs, he will have five club tricks, a diamond, a heart and two spades, making a total of nine tricks, enough for his contract.

If South lets the queen of diamonds hold the trick, North will continue with another diamond, and now when South gets in with the king of clubs, he will not have a diamond to return. He should overtake the queen of diamonds with the king and return a heart, gambling that North holds the king of hearts if he does not have the king. South has not lost anything by this play. However, if North does have the king, the contract will be defeated, as North and South will make two hearts, two diamonds and a club.

Shotwell Asserts
Preparedness Vital
In Holiday SpeechNoted Historian Declares
U. S. Need for Military Strength Is Way to Meet Challenge

Woodstock, July 6—Dr. James T. Shotwell, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, and noted historian, addressing a thoughtful gathering at the Village Green Monday morning asserted Americans need for military strength pointed the way to meet the challenge of militant Communism, and implored Americans to stand firm for their rights.

Dr. Shotwell spoke in connection with the unveiling and dedication of two bronze plaques mounted on the visual war memorial.

A local resident for more than 35 years, Dr. Shotwell has long been prominent in world affairs. He is one of the relatively few men living today who were at the Paris Peace Conference with President Woodrow Wilson. He worked with Cordell Hull and Sumner Welles during the planning for the U. N. charter, and at Dumbarton Oaks. He served as chairman of the Security Council, United Nations. In the interim, he has been chief of Division of History of American Commission to Negotiate Peace and a member of the International Labor Legislation Commission at the Peace Conference of the First World War; American member of the organizing committee, International Labor Conference, 1919; trustee and director division of economics and history, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, since 1924; director division International Relations, Social Science Research Council, 1931-33, chairman, National Committee of U. S. on International Intellectual Cooperation of League of Nations since 1932; president, League of Nations Association 1935-39; chairman, commission to study the Organization of Peace 1939-40; member Advisory Committee, Department Cultural Relations, Department of State since 1940.

The text of Dr. Shotwell's address follows:

It is surely fitting that, on the day on which we celebrate the achievements of our country, we should dedicate this memorial to those who gave their lives in its defense. It is true that there is another day in our nation's calendar, when, at the graves of the fallen, we pay tribute to them, a custom inaugurated at the close of our Civil War and maintained with solemn rites in every quarter of the land. On Armistice Day we also join with other nations to recall in silence the sacrifice of war. But today, the hundred and seventy-third birthday of our independence, we bring to this ceremony not only the poignant sense of loss but a keen reminder of the cause for which those died whose names are graven here. For it was nothing short of what this flag stands for in history and in the world today, the maintenance of freedom, of democratic government and of social and political justice as set forth in the Declaration of Independence.

There is, therefore, no better way to pay our tribute of respect to the dead than to make our own the admonition in the immortal words of Abraham Lincoln, that it is for the living to consecrate their lives to the advancement of those ideals for which these dead gave the last full measure of devotion.

These ideals are under attack in the world today. How can we best defend them? Must another war be fought and other names of those now living be added to this list in order to safeguard our American way of life? I know that there are those whose answer to this question is yes. But it is a thoughtless ill-considered answer. Let me hasten to say that if we were really forced upon us, if we were actually confronted with invasion by force either of our own country or of those who join with us in our defense, then we should not hesitate for a day to meet the challenge with everything in our power, pledging once more as they did who founded this country "our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor." Moreover, we should not allow ourselves to meet such a crisis unprepared. The weapons we would need in war today cannot be improvised overnight. It is a far cry from the muskets of Lexington and Concord to mechanized warfare and the atom bomb. To be safe against surprise attack today we need not only the best weapons science can produce but also ready plans for industrial mobilization from production for peace to production for war.

But, although military strength is essential because the danger of war still exists in the world, it must not be allowed to dominate the policies of nations, certainly not our own. For war no longer serves the purposes for which it is fought, as was once the case in the history of politics. Victor and victim, both alike lost in the universal catastrophe of scientific warfare. It would be nothing short of criminal folly to resort to war except when there is no other defense. Preventive war, which is like Japan's "sneak attack" at Pearl Harbor, has some advocates today against power that is admittedly a menace to our peace. But fortunately the advice of such demagogues

Plan Benefit for Library

Will Attend Summer Camp

Woodstock, July 7—Joseph Hilton and Carl Van Wagenen, shown with Fred Triplicco, president of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club, will leave August 1 for 10 days vacation at Camp Willowbrook, the New York State Conservation camp. Fred Wright, not present when the picture was taken, also will attend the camp. (Freeman Photo) is rejected by public opinion. For not only is it a betrayal of our solemn promises, given to the world on more than one occasion but more especially in the charter of the United Nations, it is also not the way to meet the challenge of militant Communism. On the contrary, by the disasters it would cause, it would level the defenses against Communism in every part of the world by the exhaustion of a world-wide wastage of resources far beyond the range of fighting or of actual devastation, vast and terrible as that would be. The victims of such a war might well turn in their despair to the propaganda which would certainly use every means to lay the blame for it upon the non-Communist world. We must not allow our apprehensions to lead us into any such trap as this.

The first, and indeed the only sure defense against Communism, lies in peace-time policies for the upbuilding of social and economic justice, and the elimination of exploitation in every country and not least in our own. While Communism, like Islam, uses the sword, it feeds on the grievances which the workers cherish against their employers or which the underprivileged are conscious of, a condition limited to no one nation, and too often justified by the facts. Communism wins its way chiefly by calling attention to real as well as to imagined wrongs in capitalist society. Its ideological attack is hard to meet, because, while honest-minded people recognize the justice of some of its criticisms its followers constantly have their attention carried away from its own failures to concentrate upon those of others.

Now the way to meet this insidious propaganda is not to attempt to suppress it by an extension of police action which would violate the fundamental freedoms for which our country has always stood; nor is it by the threat of force against those who are not likely to yield to such a threat. We must stand firm for our rights, not yielding to the threats of others, but, as I said here some years ago, when Nazism was a menace, our safety lies in strengthening our own way of life so that when called upon to make the supreme risk of war we can face our destiny as a united people.

Those who are so impatient of the present imperfect state of things in this land of ours as to be ready to give up freedom for dictatorship—for that is what Communism means—should study the economic and social history of the United States. They will find that the pace of social reform, far from being a slow and discouraging history of almost two centuries, is really a swift development which has happened in less than my own lifetime. The ideals of the American people turned a corner in the early years of the twentieth century, the period of the so-called Muckrakers. With the closing of the last frontiers in the nineteenth century the era of unlimited opportunity, of an ever expanding economy and freedom of movement had ended. The American conscience was awakened by new voices of protest in the mortgaged middle west where Wall Street had become a name of reproach. Trade unionism fought a savage battle for survival—and survived. Cities which had complacently accepted corrupt rule began their long and still undecided struggle to overthrow boss-rule. Within a few years the country lost the complacency of the nineteenth century. The progress we have made since then in the winning of social and economic rights is, in spite of all setbacks, simply prodigious. Those with memories as long as mine are aware that this is so. Today there is common agreement on most of the ends to be attained; the disagreement is on the speed to move ahead and on the men and the party which should lead.

This is the American way of life. Although it has taken a new turn in our day, that of concentration upon securing justice in the business of living, it is rooted in our history and in the histories of the nations of western Europe from which our own has sprung—especially England to whom we owe the basic institutions of our political life. It is strong enough in tradition and habit of mind to meet the challenge of Communism on its own terms. But it is more than a counter challenge, it is a beacon of hope to all freedom-loving people. Therefore it is with solemn pride that we here dedicate this memorial to those who gave their lives that this light should not be quenched but that it should furnish guidance through future centuries.

And now, in closing, I am going to ask you to look upon our world today as they might look upon it with a vision purified by death. I had this thought in mind when, on Armistice Day 1926, I wrote a poem of protest against the moral weakness of those inter-war years of delusive materialism. I shall quote a few verses which now seem appropriate.

I should like to close now, on a note of triumph. "There is no room for fear in the hearts of a free people." The world has just begun to be civilized. Brute force gives way to intelligence. Within a single lifetime we are turning the corner on the long stretch of centuries that reaches from the Ice-Age and beyond.

There is no parallel to this in the history of mankind. No wonder, therefore, that the pathway of progress is blocked by ignorance and the ideals of justice and liberty at times are dim. Humanity is on the march, but the goal before it is one that can never be reached; for as we "follow knowledge like a sinking star beyond the utmost bounds of human thought" we shall forever find across our pathway the shadows of heights still to be scaled of ideals still to be realized.

The ceremonies marked the culmination of work begun in the fall of 1947 when a campaign for funds to build a living memorial and a visual memorial was started by Miss Wilma Harvey and a large committee. Besides erecting the visual memorial on the Village Green, the Community War Memorial Association also contributed $1,000 of the total funds contributed by local residents, for the beginning of the Recreation Center as a living memorial.

Hubbell's Cartoons to Appear

Woodstock, July 7—While Carl Hubbell, local cartoonist, puts the finishing touches on another cartoon, his wife and young son, Jonathan, look on approvingly. Hubbell's comic strip, "Bunny Chase," will soon appear in U. S. newspapers. (Freeman Photo)

—Louis Harrison and Henry P. Longendyke; World War 2—Charles Sherwood Carnight, Eno Compton, Jr., Charles A. DiAndre, George De Fresse, Paul LeMay, Chas. Milne, Dr. John Alexander Peacock, Charles B. Pierpoint, Roger Paul Peyre, Robert Oren Russell, Leonhard Scholl, Jr., and William J. White.

Bob Browning, past commander of the Woodstock Post 1026, received a hearty welcome from children and former neighbors when he arrived to take part in the dedication ceremonies.

The Rev. Harvey I. Todd, president, Community War Memorial Association, officiated at the dedication.

Hubbell's Cartoon Is Accepted for Early Publication

Woodstock, July 7—Months of diligent work by Carl Hubbell, local cartoonist, have been rewarded by the acceptance of his comic strip, "Bunny Chase," which will appear daily, including Sundays, in newspapers across the country through the McNaught Syndicate, New York, beginning July 31.

Hubbell describes his character, Mary Chase, a beautiful blonde slouch, as the "kind of girl every mother would like her particularly as well as the kind of girl every girl would like to be." The script for the cartoonist's new strip is written by Ronnie McEvoy of Hollywood, Calif.

For the past eight years, Hubbell has been cartooning for comic magazines and is particularly known for his comic book "Sniffles." What will become of the slapstick character, Sniffles, now that Mary Chase is about to be launched, Carl would not commit himself more than to say it will continue for the present.

Born in Culver, Ind., Hubbell came to New York in 1940 where he hoped to have a fine arts career. He holds a B.A. degree in fine arts and had done extensive work and study on murals. His first job, a far cry from what he had in mind, was that of a window cleaner to a cartoonist. He worked only half days and received $5 per week. Although he spoke of those days in an amusing tone, nevertheless, he agreed that was the beginning of his career as a cartoonist.

The Hubbells have been Woodstock residents since 1942. Mrs. Hubbell, who prior to her marriage wrote advertising copy, became interested in writing scripts for comics and now turns out on the average of eight a month, besides doing her own housework and caring for their 16 months old son, Jonathan.

Their attractive home is on Ohayo Mountain road from which may be seen a beautiful view of the Catskills.

To keep up with daily deadlines, Carl hides away in his studio each morning and remains there until late afternoon.

Son Jonathan already shows signs of becoming a member of the Woodstock Chambers, that outstanding local organization made up of artists, writers, musicians and cartoonists, who make music for their own amusement primarily.

Boys Are Selected To Attend Camp

Woodstock, July 7—Teddy Wright and Joseph Hilton were awarded camperships for 10 days vacation at Camp Willowbrook, New York State Conservation Camp, by the Woodstock Fish and Game Club. The boys will leave on August 1 and their expenses will be paid by the club.

So as to show no partiality in the selection of the two boys from the township to be sent to the camp, names of boys between the ages of 12 to 16 were put in a hat and the two names drawn in that fashion, Carl Van Wagenen, Kingston Daily Freeman newsboy, will accompany Wright and Hilton but will pay his own expenses. The drawing took place last Thursday evening in the Town Hall when all boys between the required ages were the invited guests of the Woodstock Fish and Game Club. They enjoyed two motion picture films, "Fishing in New York State" and Activities at Camp Willowbrook, and refreshments.

Safety Council Is Organized for County of Ulster

The existence of an Ulster County Safety Council, to promote accident prevention and all phases of safety, became a reality last night at a meeting of the advisory board in the Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Harry P. Van Wageningen was elected president and Richard Kalish was unanimously chosen as vice president. The temporary mailing address for the Ulster County Safety Council will be the Kingston Chamber of Commerce office in the Governor Clinton Hotel. Mrs. Van Wageningen stated today that the council suggests that every organization including fraternal, civic, social and industrial have a safety representative to attend future meetings. These should be persons who can be contacted and help promote any phase of safety in which the organization may be interested. The first project of the Ulster County Safety Council was the establishment of a speakers bureau. Any organization interested in so-curing a speaker on any phase of accident prevention can write to the council in care of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce, and state the type of safety about which they would like to secure a speaker. Such requests will be promptly referred to the proper committee.

As demand warrants, Mrs. Van Wageningen states, special action committees will be established and the council would appreciate suggestions as to how all phases of safety can be best promoted to save lives, reduce economic losses and avoid suffering among the people of Ulster county.

Members of the advisory board who attended the meeting last night included Mrs. Van Wageningen, Richard Kalish, Mrs. Evelyn Hubbard, Roland Green, Captain Andrew S. Hickey, George R. Mustaparta, and Edwin T. Strong. Those who could not attend were Joseph Honig, Robert Myers, and P. J. Watson. The next meeting of the advisory board was scheduled for July 25, at the Red Cross headquarters here at 308 Clinton avenue.

Plane Has Trouble

Shannon, Ireland, July 7 (AP)—Fifty-four passengers on a transatlantic plane forced to turn back when it developed engine trouble 600 miles out of Shannon, breathed a sigh of relief today when the plane arrived back here. "I can swim," said Comedian Danny Kaye one of those aboard, "but not 600 miles." The Pan American World Airways strato-cruiser, carrying a crew of five, was en route from London to New York. The pilot, Capt. H. G. Gunbransen, of 30 Meadow Woods Road, Lake Success, N. Y., said a magnesium fire broke out in one of the port engines. When he tried cutting off that one motor, the propeller fell off, he said. The plane, using three engines, made it back to Shannon in three hours and 45 minutes. Other passengers included tennis stars Louise Brough and Margaret Osborne du Pont, returning from the Wimbledon tournament.

Cripps' Bomb Is Dull, Is Labeled 'Same Old Stuff'

London, July 7 (AP)—Sir Stafford Cripps' call for an all-out "dollar crisis" rally by the British people fell with a dull thud today.

First reaction by the nation's newspapers showed hardly a spark of response. Those which support the Tory opposition to the Labor government labeled it "the same old stuff."

Even independent and liberal editorial writers complained that the chancellor had done little or nothing to clear the economic air with his statement in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. The newspapers generally said this simply means another dose of austerity and belt tightening with no sign of a way out.

The man in the street greeted the Cripps talk with apathy. Among working folk who rode the buses and subways this morning there was little discussion of it. There was no visible alarm that the sterling area is down to its last $1,623,000,000 in gold and dollars, which have been declining steadily.

Cripps' statement that Britain cannot afford "the ridiculous luxury of politically-inspired strikes" failed to budge more than 8,000 dockers who are holding more than 100 ships idle at London docks. The men walked out in sympathy with the crews of Canadian ships who belong to a union condemned by its opponents as Communist led. Today the government sent 500 troops to unload food from the strike-bound cargo boats.

The influential Independent Manchester Guardian expressed one common complaint of the editorial writers: The Chancellor's speech did nothing to end the uncertainty over the dollar position. Britain's earnings of dollars will not revive until the British government shows that it has a policy for making them revive, or for cutting spending to our income," said the Guardian.

Lord Beveridge's Daily Express, which hews to an imperialist policy, demanded immediate "freeing" of the pound to "find its own level" in world exchanges. Cripps told Parliament he has "no intention" of removing the present official peg of $4.04.

The conservative Evening News headed its editorial on the speech "Familiar Stuff."

Nothing but words, words, words," said the News. It said "the time for pious exhortations is past" and asserted the government must give a "sign of moving on from talk to resolute and courageous action."

The first French newspapers to comment took the line that Britain's move to slash dollar imports has put the problem forcibly up to America.

Moscow Radio declared "the prestige of the United States is declining—particularly in Britain."

A Moscow commentator said America is trying to force Britain to develop the pound, give up the nationalization of industries and abandon its system of tariff preferences for the dominions and colonies.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, July 7—The annual picnic of the members of Plattekill Grange 623 will be held Saturday, July 9, at Tillson Lake. A covered dish supper will be served at 7 p. m., with members of the service and hospitality committee in charge of dessert and refreshments. At a recent meeting of the Grange, a patriotic moving picture "A Letter From America" was shown, through the courtesy of Mrs. Myron Foster, principal of Plattekill school. John DeLapp gave a reading "Sweet Land of Liberty" which was illustrated by various tableaux, depicting freedom of mer vacation.

speech, religion and assembly. It was announced that a social dance will be held Friday evening, July 22. Members of the committee are Mary Harris, Gladys Dewdney, Mary Constance and Theresa Duch, Kenneth Birdsell and Ronald Leitch.

Local people attended the tenth annual commencement of the Wallkill Central School Monday evening in the high school auditorium. Students from this locality graduating in the class of '49 were Helen Barbitzky, Mildred Etzell, Catherine Ruggiero and Lenora Rodriguez. Helen Barbitzky was class president, and Mildred Etzell co-treasurer. Elizabeth Wells of Modena is assisting in the general care of Patrick Fleming during the summer vacation.

At Playhouse

REX O'MALLEY

Woodstock, July 7.—Rather a coincidence is the fact that Rex O'Malley, star of stage, screen, radio and television, who will appear at the Woodstock Playhouse next week in "Light Up The Sky" by Moss Hart, became acquainted with the author in 1926 when O'Malley came from his native England to play in the New York production of "The Idiot," and Moss Hart was the box office boy at the theatre.

For the past two years, O'Malley has been heard frequently in the Theatre Guild of the Air productions, but we learned in an interview that he prefers the legitimate stage. He has appeared in London, Dublin, and Paris with the Abbey players in "Playboy" and "Shadow of the Gunman" but he was not a member of the Abbey permanent company.

Of the numerous plays he has appeared in during the past 23 years, "Camille," with Greta Garbo remains his favorite.

In spite of his ability and numerous successes, O'Malley showed a decided preference for discussing "wonderful Woodstock" rather than his own appearances. "Don't try to improve Woodstock. . . I love it. . . I have but one suggestion I will thank the town to put in a water system." We assured him that many others in the town felt as he did and were actively working on the project.

O'Malley came here to appear with Hella Stoddard in "O Mistress Mine" but like so many others who come for a short period and remain for years, he is uncertain as to his departure. His adopted son, David Vivian, arrived this week for a visit.

During the early days of his career, he appeared in revues with Beatrice Lillie and Gertrude Lawrence, in London, and later on Broadway in Lady Windemere's Fan, The Man Who Came to Dinner, You Never Know, and other productions.

Information Given Regarding Hunting Permits for Minors

Woodstock, July 7.—The following information has been released to Supervisor Kenneth L. Wilson by the New York State Conservation Department, Division of Conservation Education, Albany, relative to a new law affecting minors under 17 years of age seeking their first hunting license.

"Under a new law effective July 1, New York state game protectors alone may issue hunting licenses to minors under 17 seeking their first licenses and then only after the protector has schooled the applicant in the proper handling of firearms."

"This new law," Conservation Commissioner Peiry B. Duryea commented today, "should do much to help reduce hunting accidents by making sure that new hunters get off on the right foot. We're going all out to see that they not only are instructed in firearms safety, as the law requires, but also realize their other responsibilities afield. We're even going to teach them sportsmanlike conduct."

Prepared by the Department's Division of Conservation Education, a "New Hunter's Manual" will be given each licensed minor. The foreword, by Commissioner Duryea, lists the hunter's five main responsibilities as:

(1) To hunt without injury to yourself or another; (2) to hunt without harm to the property of another; (3) to hunt without harm to the sport of another; (4) to hunt without harm to the future game crop; and (5) to hunt without causing undue suffering to a single living thing.

The condensed manual includes the main firearms safety rules and, under the heading, "Be a Real Sportsman," outlines many rules for conduct afield. Also, included are several paragraphs on general conservation pointing out, "When you harvest—you must plant as well, don't be just a hunter."

Prior to the enactment of the new law, hunting licenses to those 14, 15 and 16 years of age were issued by the town clerk provided application for the license bore the parents' signatures and it was understood that those carrying the junior license must be accompanied by a parent or an adult carrying written approval of the parents.

Another release from Albany states "School began July 5 at the New York State Conservation Education Camp at De Bruce, Sullivan county, for nearly 40 new state game protectors, recently appointed to fill vacancies resulting from retirement and death."

"The week long course will instruct the new appointees in the Conservation Law, department services and operation, court procedure, public relations, and general conservation."

The school will be directed by William E. Tinney, personnel officer, assisted by Earl A. Westervelt, with a faculty composed of representatives from the Conservation Department and the attorney general's office.

Soon after the close of the Game Protectors School, the camp again will be operated by the department for large groups of boys, sponsored by sportsmen's clubs of the lower Hudson valley and the metropolitan area. The camp will close late in August and is one of four similar boys' conservation camp projects scheduled this summer.

Pit Under Street

Yonkers, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—A small pavement break last night

NEW JET TAKES CAMERA BOW—Here's the first flight picture of the Air Force's new all-weather, jet propelled F-44 night fighter. The plane is a new version of the 600 mph F-80 Shooting Star equipped to fly in pitch black night and under all weather conditions. It differs from the Shooting Star in its extended nose section which has two cockpits—one for the pilot and one for a radar operator.

disclosed a large pit beneath one of Yonkers' main streets near the center of the city. The area was topped off to trolleys, buses and private motor vehicles. Passengers on public transit lines were forced to walk around the area and board trolleys or buses on the other side. Fire Chief William C. Garvin said a three foot square section of pavement on Palisade avenue collapsed in the midst of the first rain storm in weeks. It exposed a pit 15 feet square and 22 feet deep beneath the pavement, Garvin said.

Boy Loses Hand

Hempstead, N. Y. July 7 (AP)—A blasting cap exploded last night in the hand of a 12-year-old boy, blowing off the hand and possibly blinding the boy's left eye. Police said the cap apparently was one of an undetermined number taken from a nearby powder magazine last week-end. Officers waited at Meadowbrook Hospital in the hope of learning from the boy, Clinton Aultman, where the other caps are.

One Riot Death

Kingston, Jamaica, July 7 (AP)—One person was killed last night and several hurt, including three police, when rioting broke out during a by-election in suburban Goriotown. Reports from the area add William A. Bustamante, leader of a powerful labor faction, narrowly escaped injury in the fracas.

As Pegler Sees It

She was actually a correspondent of the good old mock-Republican New York Herald Tribune. The book is nippy narrative, nicely mingling sexology with straight, descriptive Sunday feature stuff. I gather that this "very charming person," as Congressman Jod Johnson, an Oklahoma Democrat, often called her, was on the cuff, or a guest of Soviet Russia.

As chairman of a sub-committee of the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. Johnson, 1940, made a campaign to root out of soft government jobs individuals who were planted there by bureaucrats for obscure reasons. Mr. Johnson said Miss Gruber had been planted on the Alaska Railroad, a government property, in the highest salary bracket next to the general manager, after a season of work in Mr. Tokes' own office at the Department of the Interior. Gruff as those old curmudgeons are, their repulsive exterior sometimes masks a tender and affectionate nature. Miss Gruber, in this Arctic book, reveals that she knew the score by innuendo, herself. I wondered why Mr. Johnson kept referring to her as "this very charming person" in revealing the fact that all she did for the railroad for her $6,000 a year, plus $7 a day, was make some dead-end trips along the line and write some pieces for sale. He intimated that she even got the proceeds of the sales. That would be a question of price, rather than amount, for three of her masterpieces showed up in Soviet Russia today, and Communist papers don't pay much. She could do better selling to the New Yorker and still feel at home.

The blurb data reports that Miss Gruber got her degree of doctor of philosophy in 1932 at the age of 20 after studying at the University of Cologne. She was born in Brooklyn and had been around the Ivy circuit like the tramp athletes of old, with stops at New York U., Mt. Holyoke, Harvard and Wisconsin. Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, wrote a preface. With the blubber scraped off, this name becomes plain William A. Gruber and he is an American from North Dakota. Miss Gruber seems to exaggerate the public importance of her phedee degree, and in a shy and modest way, pays homage to herself by way of introduction. Cranks threatened to kidnap her and men sent their pictures and urged her to marry them. But this passed, and things were mighty dull when suddenly she got a fellowship to go abroad again and study the problems of women.

After certain meanderings, she went to Moscow and interviewed Prof. Otto Yulievich Schmidt. Like me, you may be ashamed to admit that you never heard of the professor, but Ralph Barnes, the Moscow correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, was very alert and like to blow the gasket when she told him the professor was sending her on a trip through the Arctic. Ralph is the brother of Joe, the author of the Herald Tribune's peculiar policy toward Communism in our midst for several years. Ruth gave many persons offered her advice, among them Hannu Eisler, the Communist who was barred from this country until Eleanor Roosevelt butted in with the State Department, not once but twice.

On page 100, the very charming lady says the Russian government was paying the tolls on her dispatches from the Arctic to the Herald Tribune's Moscow bureau. Some of them ran to 2,000 words. The price to the Herald Tribune would have been "fabulous" she says. To a journalist of the strict American school this subsidy is called the motto: "Whose bread I eat his song I sing."

Damon Runyon used to toss that off and I searched the reference books in vain for it. Then, casually, one night, William A. Curley, the editor of the Journal-American, uttered the phrase and when I asked him whence Runyon got it, he said: "I gave it to him. I learned it off a baker's wagon in Brooklyn when I was a kid."

Doctor Gruber has quite a time standing off the sex-starved Russian wolves in the Arctic, but she is not only very charming, but a determined woman.

The episode of the faithless interpreter, a dirty dog who pitched woo at the very charming girl friend of the sentimental old curmudgeon while pretending to translate scientific remarks to her from a savant named Vasya, is stuff you seldom come upon in the formal humdrum of Washington bureaucracy.

The interpreter, that dirty dog, said it was most ironic to be the medium between two people in love when he loved her, too. Yes, he loved her but he was plain and good-hearted whereas the other was handsome but cruel.

Ruth felt a flood of denial welling up and I can assure you that love among the phedees is just a rarefied version of the sweetest story ever told.

The very charming lady finally crossed the Northern Sea route in a common freighter and, according to her tendency to exaggerate the importance of things she does, she wrote: "The Northern Sea route has become the Soviet's Maginot Line against Germany and Japan. Russia sits securely within her two great oceans, the Pacific and the Arctic."

This was written before World War 2 (Copyright, 1949, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ICED COFFEE SEASON IS HERE

ICED COFFEE — Made strong and clear and served with sugar syrup, it's an ideal summer refresher.

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

Fresh, strong, clear and tinkling—that's the ideal iced coffee. To sweeten it, try using a syrup of sugar and water boiled together and chilled.

To be at its best, iced coffee must start with good hot coffee. There are two ways to prepare it:

Pre-Cooled Method
1. Make coffee regular strength—one standard coffee measure (two level measuring tablespoonfuls) of coffee to each three-quarters of a measuring cup of freshly drawn water.
2. Cool in a non-metallic container for not more than three hours, or, if the container is tightly covered, chill in refrigerator.
3. Serve in tall glasses with ice, adding sugar or sugar syrup and cream to taste.

Quick Method
1. Make coffee double strength, by using half the amount of water to the usual amount of coffee.
2. Pour hot over ice cubes in tall glasses. The extra-strong coffee allows for the dilution caused by the melting of the ice.
3. Serve with cream and sugar or sugar syrup to taste. Here are suggestions for several variations:

TOMORROW'S MENU

BREAKFAST: Melon, cornflakes, soft-cooked eggs, whole wheat toast, butter or fortified margarine, marmalade, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Tomatoes stuffed with cottage cheese and chopped olives, mayonnaise or French dressing, enriched crusty bread, butter or fortified margarine, stewed pears, sponge cake, tea, milk.

DINNER: Tomato juice, broiled salmon steaks, butter and lemon parsley sauce, boiled new potatoes, green peas, enriched soft rolls, butter or fortified margarine, watercress and cucumber salad, French dressing, blackberry roll, hard sauce, coffee, milk.

The Woes of Dr. Willis

By FRANK TRIPP

There are people who are born to a life of excitement; and there are born Patsys, forever in a muddle.

Will Gardner, of whom I've told you much, had dinner with us on his 83rd birthday, just passed. We got him to talking about Dr. F. L. H. Willis, for whose family he worked for 45 years.

Dr. Willis was a Rochester physician, with a summer home on Seneca Lake. He also was a speaker of note; would often awe Will by returning after a week's trip with $1,500 in fees from his lectures.

Nevertheless the doctor was a Patsy of the first order. It was a dull week which brought him no out-of-the-ordinary adventure to amuse the lakeland community.

The dinner sherry reminded Will of the elderberry wine he once made for the doctor. It was kegged for fermentation and a wooden plug was driven into the bung-hole.

Despite his poise, meddling with things outside his realm brought Dr. Willis many predicaments. He got inquisitive about the wine a bit prematurely.

THE WOODEN BUNG protruded from the barrel to tempt him. He investigated closely, his flowing side whiskers right over the bung, as he tapped it sidewise with a hammer. The uneasy purple liquid inside needed only that much encouragement.

There was a muffled boom and the room was filled with elderberry wine. The ceiling and walls were covered—and so was the doctor; likewise his whiskers. He canceled a few of his lucrative lectures while he bleached his blue beard back to white.

No sooner had the countryside ceased laughing than the doctor furnished more merriment. He had an aversion to cats, one black and white cat in particular. Strolling through his grounds at dusk, he came upon that feline and heaved a rock at it.

His aim was good—and so was the cat's, for the kitty at which he threw the stone was not the one he thought. It was another breed of black and white cat which is given wide berth by all who know its marksmanship.

Another speaking tour was postponed. The doctor's clothes were buried and he went into isolation while he solved an embarrassing problem, which again involved his beard and his head of matching silver hair.

WHEN IT SEEMED SAFE for the doctor to resume his tour he arrived at the station too late to buy a ticket. Many eyes were on his compelling personality when the conductor came along.

He reached for his purse of folding money which he had carried through his encounter with the kitty. He opened it to pay his fare; the pent-up perfume was released. Passengers changed their seats. The conductor conducted the celebrity to the far end of the smoking car. He was in isolation again.

Dignified though he was, the doctor sought to live the democratic life of the small community. So when he bought a new cookstove in Watkins and it was delivered by boat, he rode to the dock to see it safely loaded on a lumber wagon and taken to his home.

He thought to impress the Glenora natives by riding home atop the stove. The lively horse may have felt frisky, or they might have wanted to join in the local fun with a horse laugh.

Anyway, they made a sudden getaway, and off the wagon, into the road went stove, doctor and all — luckily the smashed stove still under, not on top of its mortified owner.

DR. WILLIS was not always contributory to his woes; some he just couldn't escape. One day as he approached his Rochester home, a runaway team of horses — as if they had his number — chased him across his lawn and knocked him down on his own doorstep.

Another time he rested in front of a fireplace in a Boston hotel. Stretched out in comfort, his feet extended toward the fire, he seemed safe enough from the unending misadventure which pursued him.

But the marble mantel fell from above the fireplace and crushed his toes.

In spite of it all, he lived his allotted years and died a natural death.

Lehman Undecided

if he wants the job. Lehman yesterday received the endorsement of Mayor William O'Dwyer, Bronx County Democratic Leader J. Edgar Hoover, and Brooklyn Borough President John Cashmore for the post. An election to fill the senatorial seat vacated by the resignation of Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D-N.Y.) will be held next November. A successor—to serve until the election—is to be appointed by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

Republicans Say Bowles Acts Like Dictator, Go Home

Hartford, Conn., July 7 (AP)—Connecticut Republican legislators were back at their homes today—but not, they insisted, because Governor Bowles sent them there.

Defying a week-old gubernatorial proclamation adjourning a special session of the General Assembly, the Republican-controlled House met for two hours yesterday and accused the Democratic chief executive of acting like a "dictator."

The Democratic-controlled Senate stayed away from the capitol. And so did all the Democratic representatives except for Minority Leader John P. Cotten of Hartford, who charged the House's session was "merely a Republican caucus."

Bowles, former national O.P.A.

administrator, wasn't on hand. He had set sail the day before on a coastal cruise aboard his yacht, Marm, but Democratic State Chairman John M. Bailey took up the cudgels on his behalf.

Bailey said the House session was a "farce," a "foolish spectacle" and "a fitting climax to a six-month record of clowning."

More battling is in store. The governor has announced he will call a special session in the fall to reconsider state grants for education, one of the chief bones of contention between him and the House.

Traffic Accidents Take 551 Lives in State in 4 Months

Albany, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—Traffic accidents in New York state during the first four months this year killed 551 persons. The toll was 16 per cent greater than in the corresponding 1948 period.

The State Motor Vehicle Bureau also reported today that traffic injuries had climbed by seven per cent, from 32,231 during the January-April 1948 period to 34,539 during the same 1949 period.

Fatalities and injuries declined, however, during April over April, 1948 totals, the bureau said.

Deaths in April this year totaled 138, as against 146 last year. Non-fatal injuries decreased from 10,051 during April, 1948, to 9,593 during the same month this year.

Gleason Is Injured In Highland Accident

Vincent DePaul Gleason, 21, of Pleasant Valley received slight injuries when the automobile he was driving struck the guard rail along Route 299, one-half mile west of Highland at 3:50 a. m. today, state police said.

Gleason was treated for lacerations to his left eye and face by his family physician following the accident, according to the report. A passenger, Donald Perkins, 26, of Poughkeepsie, was not injured, state police said.

According to the troopers' report, Gleason was driving east on Route 299 and failed to make a right curve in the road, the automobile sideswiping a telephone pole and crashing into the guard rail. The automobile, owned by the town of Pleasant Valley, was considerably damaged, police said.

SHOKAN NEWS

Shokan, July 7.—Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Guglielmo and children of New York spent the holiday with Mrs. Guglielmo's father, Charles Rodriguez of the Coons neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. Santi Nadel, winter residents of Bryn Athyn, Pa., are at their Shokan place for the summer. Mrs. Nadel is the former Blanche Hughes of Shokan.

Elder Arnold H. Bellows, pastor of the local O. S. Baptist Church, recently conducted preaching services at Hopewell, N. J., home town of the late Elder Vaughn who was well known here.

Mrs. W. S. Vanderbent is making a number of improvements to her place on the westerly slope of Toran's Hook mountain.

Joe Anthony, who had previously been coming here each summer for the past seven years, was at the Pheasant Inn over the holiday. Joe has regular employment in the city now and will not be up this season. The young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Anthony, former occupants of the B. VanSteenburgh cottage, and two sisters, Althea and Evelyn, will go to Lakewood, N. J., this summer.

Stephen Ellis, 12, of Margaretville, landed a 24-inch trout weighing 3½ pounds, at the bridge near the village. The lad, who had to have a bit of adult assistance in pulling in his whopping fish, was using minnow bait. Low water in the streams up that way is making life rather hazardous for the larger trout.

The birth of a daughter, Carol Louise, June 21, in Kingston makes Mr. and Mrs. Gould Persons of Shokan grandparents for the second time. Charlie has been employed in Kingston for the past several years.

Mrs. John Gukas and four children have arrived at their place in the village center for the summer months. Henry Gebelein is building an addition onto his apartment and garage building adjoining the family residence in the village center. Mr. and Mrs. John Vallund of

New York, who bought the James H. Shurtler residence property on the middle reservoir road last month, are occupying their new home. The couple, who have two children, Evelyn and John, expect tentatively to use the place for summer and week-end purposes. Mr. and Mrs. Shurtler have stored their personal effects in Kingston and will travel during the next few months.

Frank Griffin, who has the reputation of being Delhi's No. 1 fisherman, while fishing in the west branch of the Delaware, between Hamden and Walton, landed a 24½-inch brown trout that weighed five pounds, 13 ounces. Frank, it might be added for the benefit of our sportsman readers, was using at this big moment a glass rod, a 6-pound test Monofilament line, and a small red-eye wiggler as bait. (These here, now, "red-eyes" might work all right down at the dividing weir of the Ashokan, eh?)—Genial William O'Reilly of Kingston might try a few of them when he repairs to his favorite fishing grounds in the Broadhead sector of the West Basin.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Terhune and family of Fleetwood were here during the week-end. Receiving word of the sudden illness of Mrs. Terhune's mother, Mrs. Joseph Naughton, the visitors were obliged to curtail their holiday and return to the city Sunday evening. Mrs. Terhune's brother, Walter Naughton, and family, also of Fleetwood, are now at their summer home along the Ridge Road.

Callers at the village center home of George Kolder on the Fourth included Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeWitt of Kingston and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Murphy of New York. During the day, George was the guest of his friends at a dinner party at Torino's Inn. Mr. DeWitt is a executive at the De Laval plant in Poughkeepsie where he has been employed for the past 26 years. He is a grandson of the Senator Dewitt who wrote and published a graphic story on the assassination of Abraham Lincoln.

Second Excellent Concert of Summer Is Given by Quartet

Familiar music, modern music for the chamber music ensemble were the fare for the second concert in the summer series presented by the Woodstock String Quartet at St. James Methodist Church Hall Wednesday night. In addition to the string ensemble, Ise Sass, pianist, returned this week to win more plaudits, this time for her group of piano solos.

Her interpretations, deep insights and technique capably expressed all of her varied selections, the Schumann Arabesque opus 18; Chopin Study in a flat major; Smetana Furlant; and her encore, Prokofiev's Gavotte in F Sharp Major.

Henry Terpening was guest artist with the group for the double bass in Mozart's ever charming Eine Kleine Nachtmusik with which the quartet opened the program.

For the modern work the quartet chose String Quartet opus 49 G Major by Dmitri Shostakovich. Sometimes difficult for the listener to enjoy there are many portions of the modern works that can be appreciated from points of technique, harmonies, unusual though they may be, and the melodies here and there. The selection gave Frank Mele, violinist, his first opportunity for solo work to prove his ability as another important member of this ensemble. It was interesting to hear the broad melodic themes pronounced by one of the instruments against the whimsical turns and trills of the others.

In conclusion the quartet played Dvorak's String Quartet (American) which has themes suggesting folk music and in part embodies musical peculiarities and rhythms of the American Indian. Dvorak wrote the composition while on a visit to this country.

Next Wednesday, trios, quartets and quintets will be included in the program. This same program will be given at Woodstock Friday night and New Paltz Tuesday night.

First Free Dance Of Series Will Be At Forsyth Park

The first free dance given by the Musicians' Protective Union of Kingston in cooperation with the Recreation Department of the city, will be held Monday night, 8 o'clock, at the tennis court in Forsyth Park. Bud Deyo and his Columbians will supply the music.

Five dances in all will be sponsored for Kingston residents. These dances are part of a program presented by the Musicians' Union under a fund allotted by the American Federation of Musicians to the Kingston local. All will have music by twelve-piece orchestras led by popular local leaders.

In addition to the first dance at Forsyth Park other dances will be held July 18, July 25, August 1 and 8, at parks; to be announced prior to the dance date.

Wire is estimated to have 150,000 uses.

Sprightly Patterns Spice Summer Scene

Vivid cotton fashions such as these, photographed in New Orleans' famous French Quarter, will brighten up the summer vacation scene. The sunset colored plaid dress (left), which is sunback-styled, is modestly covered by a tri-cornered scarf. Pin stripes are angled horizontally to accentuate the triple-flounced skirt of the dinner dress (center) which has matching stole. Traveler's suit (right), softly tailored in dark plaid to look cool and smart, has a jacket with nipped-in waistline and turn-down collar topping a bias-cut skirt.

EMILY POST Thursday
NO REPLY CARDS WITH INVITATIONS

Several readers lately have asked this same question: "Would it be possible, even though not correct, for us to enclose all-in return cards and stamped addressed envelopes with the invitations to our daughter's wedding reception? Our friend's experience has taught us that people will not send in their answers in time for the caterers to make preparations. And preparing for guests who never turn up adds unnecessary expense."

It has never been customary to enclose a reply card with any social invitations and it would seem strange. However, I do sympathize with your problem and only wish I could approve of your solution—but from the point of view of correctness, I can't!

Rising to Shake Hands
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it impolite for a woman to shake hands with either another woman or a man without getting up? As an example, a woman is sitting on the sofa at a large tea or cocktail party. Another guest whom she has not seen for some time, comes over to greet her and holds out her hand. Does she have to get up? And what if this person were a man?

Mother Is Right!
Dear Mrs. Post: Mother thinks when a boy who has driven me home walks up to the door with me I should say good night and go inside the house immediately before he turns back to his car. I think that looks rude and feel that as long as he walks with me to the front door, I should at least wait to go inside until he drives away in the car. Which of us is right?

Answer: Your mother! Standing at the door watching him get into his car is of the same variety of "longing looking" as standing out at the curb watching for him to drive up. Nor is it proper to stand at the door of your house saying a dragged out good-night.

Mrs. Post's booklet, No. 502, "Letter Writing," gives advice and samples of well-written notes for various occasions, as well as the color and quality of paper to use. STORM CENTER—A Senate controversy is brewing over the nomination of John Carson, of Detroit, to be a member of the Federal Trade Commission. It involves Carson's recent statement that "capitalism had its death rattle in 1929 and has been in convulsions ever since." Carson said he referred to the old "boom-and-bust capitalism."

One Bid Received On Belle Ayre Lift

One "satisfactory bid" was received yesterday for construction of a chair lift at the Belle Ayre Mountain Ski Center, Pine Hill, the New York State Department of Public Works announced today.

John A. Robbling's Sons Co., of Trenton, N. J., bid $144,984, and the bid was on slightly more than half of 10 possible proposals advertised by the department.

The company specializes in the construction of suspension bridges, and is believed to be the only one in the immediate eastern region equipped to handle the ski-lift project, the department indicated. No other bids were received.

Colonials Meet Waterbury Tonight in Series Opener at Stadium

Big Fireworks Display Also Scheduled; New Player Added

With clear blue skies indicating ideal baseball weather, another full house is presaged for tonight's double feature at the municipal stadium. The Waterbury Timers will be in for a regular Colonial League engagement after which Monday's postponed fireworks display will be presented.

Game time is slated for 8 p. m. sharp.

More than 1,500 spectators jammed the uptown ball park Monday night for the regularly scheduled fireworks display but a rainstorm interrupted the show. Rain checks for Monday's game will be honored tonight.

Manager Julie Laviano's tossers had an off day yesterday when rain postponed the Colonials get-away game in Stamford.

Although no definite pitching choice has been named for tonight's duel with Bert Shepard's Waterbury club, it is expected that either Teddie "Red" Tollefson or Hamilton Graham will take the mound. Tollefson is expected to lead the Colonials.

Tollefson's last outing was a 3 to 2 victory over Bristol Saturday night at the stadium.

New Player Arrives

President Ted Laviano announced this morning the purchase of a new player who will be in uniform tonight. He is Mario Perez, 28, who will be available for either third base or first.

Perez, Laviano said today, played in both the Puerto Rican League and Florida State League last year. While in the latter circuit, he was a member of the Deland club.

With Frank Grunato benched because of weak stickwork, Perez may get the call at first which means the return of Danny Perimutter to the outfield. Perimutter has been at the initial sack in the last couple of games.

However, Perimutter's stay at the first base position may be contingent due to Gerald "Red" Murray's trick knee. The third sacker was injured earlier in the year and it is reported that it has been giving him trouble of late. If Murray's injured knee fails to respond to treatment, Perez may get the call at the hot corner for tonight's arduous encounter.

Sinatra Comes First

(By The Associated Press)

The Bristol Owls, still panting from a 12-inning 19-16 marathon victory over Waterbury, will get their second chance in a week starting tonight to do something about the leads Bridgeport and Stamford hold over them in the Colonial League.

By outgunning Waterbury last night while Bridgeport was taking an 8-1 lacing from Poughkeepsie, Bristol drew to within a single game of the pace setting Bees. The teams start a two game series tonight at Bristol and a sweep for the Owls would send them a game ahead of Bridgeport.

Stamford was rained out last night and saw its second place lead of a game over the Owls sliced to half a game. The Pioneers invade Poughkeepsie tonight for a two-game series.

Bristol's victory over Waterbury last night found Manager Bert Shepard of the Timers both the hero and the goat of the marathon. Shepard hit two home runs with one of them coming with two on and two out in the ninth to drive in the final three of eight runs the Timers scored in a decisive 13-4 win.

The amputee southpaw weakened in the twelfth and yielded six hits for four runs, getting credit for the loss.

Poughkeepsie took advantage of an error, a walk, a sacrifice and a single off Bobby Reed in the first inning for two runs and the lead it never yielded in conquering Bridgeport. The Chiefs added another in the fourth and five more in the seventh of what was to have been the abbreviated first half of a doubleheader. The second game was halted by rain in the fourth inning with Bridgeport leading, 4-0.

Syracuse University's 15 sports teams won 83 contests while losing 49 and tying two during the past year for a .629 winning average.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

By The Associated Press

By JACK HAND, Associated Press Sports Writer

All Walker Cooper needed was a change of scenery—or was it a change of managers?

Big Coop, who popped off publicly about his trials with the New York Giants under Leo Durocher, sounded off with his big bat yesterday for his new boss—Bucky Walters—at Cincinnati.

Six straight base hits, including three three-run homers, added up to a big 10 runs batted in for the ex-Giant who went to Cincy for Catcher Ray Mueller on June 14.

The big fellow who cost Horace Stoneham $175,000 in January of 1946 had the biggest day of his long career against the Chicago Cubs yesterday afternoon. It was also the biggest day for the Reds in many a day as they rolled up a 23-4 landslide for Ken Kintner's big ninth victory.

Coop Misses Record

Cooper had a chance to tie Uncle Wilbert Robinson's all-time record of seven consecutive hits when he came up in the eighth inning. He grounded into a force play, breaking the string. The 10 RBIs were only two short of the record set by Sunny Jim Bottomley of the St. Louis Cards back on Sept. 16, 1924.

In the third, sixth and seventh innings, Cooper hammered home runs, each time with two men on base. Earlier in the season, Pat Mullin of Detroit and Andy Seminick of the Phils also hit three homers in one game.

The heavy firing in Cincy overshadowed the pennant race which almost—but not quite—resulted in a first place tie. Brooklyn's one-game lead was cut in half when the Dodgers lost to the Boston Braves, 7-5, but the runnerup St. Louis Cards blew a 3-1 lead in the last of the ninth and bowed to Pittsburgh, 4-3. As a result, the Brooks still lead by a full game.

Tommy Holmes sank the Dodgers with his third homer in the last three days. It came in the eighth with Jim Russell on base.

Bagatelles:

We know it sounds monotonous and repetitious, but what a difference a covered grandstand would have made at municipal stadium on the night of July 4th! Wonder if anyone suggested an 18-hole golf course to that ex-Kingstonian millionaire who was in town a few days ago? We can think of no finer personal memorial to Edward F. Hutton. The only rub is that Mr. Hutton probably doesn't think so. Bill Lohman of New Paltz launched his OB comeback with a three-inning, one-hit relief stint for the Jersey City Giants.

Now that Phil Corrado Sr. has joined Woody Woodpecker at municipal stadium, Ted Laviano should charge admission just to watch those fellows do their act.

Kiner Puts Okay on Dino as Clouter:

Here is Ralph Kiner's estimate of Dino Restelli, his new home run partner on the Pirates: "Dino's a great hitter," Kiner says. "Has a good stance at the plate, good wrist action and good follow-through. He takes a short stride and isn't fooled too often. He has shown that he can hit every kind of pitch, too. One of the best things about Dino is his attitude. He's always willing to learn and keeps asking for advice."

Of Things Piscatorial:

A sudden and chastened Nick "Radium" LaLima came off second best to our own Roland Post in a fishing sweepstakes at Indian Lake over the week-end. Post's Northern pike measured 27 inches. Also runs included George Kuriger, Emerson Mayes, Art Ballard and Frank Ackley.

Ed Davey, the Wall Street department store tycoon, may be cited by the Canadian government for hauling in the largest Northern pike of the season in Canadian waters—a 22-pound beauty. . . . That is, if George Flemings, his partner, can be induced to dig up the clippings from the Toronto newspaper that he buried in his backyard. It seems that "Curly's" successes on the fishing expedition did not quite come up to expectations. More details later.

Flotsam and Jetsam:

KFBA officials have asked us to squelch rumors that admission will be charged for spectators at certain vintage points for the regatta next Sunday on the Rondout. . . . "We do not charge any admission and the spectators are invited to view the races from our anchorage and to get a close-up of the boats and drivers," an official said. The Boy Scout troop of Connelly will have a refreshment stand on the Connelly side of the creek near the old ferry slip. . . . Rudolph Daniels, who signs himself as a "howling fan," deplores the lack of publicity for R. Bratt who recently converted the second 7-10 split in local bowling history. The first, being by Henry Kessman. The answer is this: Kessman's 7-10 is the only conversion substantiated by witnesses. We don't deny that Bratt got his and we commend him for it, but of late too many wise guys are scrivenging notes across the top of score sheets that Joe Dunken or somebody else made the 7-10. If such conversions are reported through the proper channels, we will devote a full measure of publicity. After all, we've been trying for 17 years and can appreciate the thrill of a 7-10 conversion.

Colonial Capers:

Hamilton Graham's three-inning stint against the Chiefs Monday night extended his scoreless streak to 24 consecutive innings, only 21 of which are official. . . . Carlos Bernier, the Bristol Puerto Rican flash, stole his 41st base here Sunday night and needs only seven more to tie the league record. His throwing arm is one of the best in OB and rumor has it he will be a Detroit Tiger one of these days.

Charlie Howroyd is planning a Wen Westrum Night at Poughkeepsie on July 18. . . . Art Suffoletta, who was the sensation on the last few amateur boxing cards here, has turned professional. Ditto Bob Yardboro, the upstate heavyweight. About the only people who like a dry spell are baseball club owners and horan players. Baseball magnates just dread that "ruled on account of rain" chant, while horan players don't have to worry about getting mud in their eyes.

MULLIGAN MIKE: Disputed with the last place position of the Newark Bears, one of the city's newspapers has dropped them from the International League standings. Obviously those fellows can't grin and bear it.

Prosecutor Says Facts Show Hiss Gave Away Papers

New York, July 7 (AP)—The government prosecutor declared today in his jury summation at the Alger Hiss perjury trial that "uncontradicted facts" show Hiss gave State Department secret papers to Whittaker Chambers.
In the midst of his summation to the jury of ten men and two women who will begin deciding Hiss' fate later today, U. S. Attorney Thomas F. Murphy pointed at Hiss and declared Hiss' guilt was "the only inference that can be drawn."
The tall, bulky Murphy began his summation in quiet tones in contrast to the impassioned appeal of defense attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker who completed his summation earlier.
Emphasizing the question raised earlier by Stryker of "reasonable doubt," Murphy declared:
"I'm very glad there is an open and long discussion about 'reasonable doubt' because the judge will tell you that it's the doubt that's based upon reason."

employment have also occurred in transportation, certain services, and mining. On the other hand, employment in trade, in construction, and in governmental activity has been holding up.
"4. Another factor contributing to the rise in unemployment has been a substantial increase in the labor force—due to natural population growth plus the return of many veterans from school—with-out corresponding expansion in economic activity during the past year.
"5. The number of persons who have only part-time jobs and want to work full-time has increased about one million in recent months. Most of the overtime prevalent in recent years has been eliminated."
Hardest hit by unemployment has been New England, where industrial jobs have dropped considerably. The most substantial declines were reported in New Bedford, Providence, Bridgeport and Waterbury. Seasonal gains in construction work have been offset by the down trend in manufacturing.
But the locality worst hit of all is Muskegon, Mich., where, according to the report, by curtailment of factory production, unemployment reached a level higher than that of any major area in the country.
"The most favorable economic conditions were found in the west, where jobs actually increased in eight out of eleven major areas and held the status quo in two—Salt Lake City. A slight decline in unemployment was reported in Los Angeles, and a moderate decline in San Diego.
The committee on the economic report found that unemployment had fluctuated around the two-million level during 1947 and 1948. An unusually low figure for peacetime economy, this has risen to 3.8 million during the first six months of 1949.
Unemployment during the 1947-1948 boom years could be traced to temporary reasons such as material shortages, seasonal slow-downs, or in-between-job layoffs. The recent unemployment, however, has been more serious. For example, 750,000 unemployed have not been able to get work for four months—twice the number who had stayed out of work that long last year. Despite this, however, 1/3 to 2/3 of those out of jobs this year have found work within one month.
More men than women have been thrown out of jobs as a result of the rise in unemployment. The committee found no widespread surpluses or shortages of agriculture, labor except in localized areas.

Britain Gets Sympathy But Little Other Aid

Washington, July 7 (AP)—Great Britain seemed likely today to get American sympathy—and not much else—in her newest financial plight.
Members of Congress generally reacted coolly to the announcement that Britain is down to her last $1,642,000,000 in gold and dollars. Their general observation was that the problem is one the British will have to solve for themselves without increased U. S. financial aid.
In diplomatic circles, Secretary of State Acheson displayed a tendency to discount the British situation somewhat.
He said that, like an individual whose income drops, Britain was cutting her purchases. He added this was an unfortunate temporary necessity, however, and not a permanent solution.
Unless Congress changes the figure, England will get $920,000,000 in Marshall Plan aid this year. That was taken into account by Sir Stafford Cripps, finance minister, in announcing drastic cuts in buying from the United States and other dollar areas.
Democrats and Republicans joined in saying that beyond the Marshall Plan aid the British had better not count on additional U. S. help.
Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, told a reporter he thinks most of the members of his party will regard the $920,000,000 as the limit of aid.
"The British have a planned economy and it just hasn't worked," he said. "They'll have to work out their problem for themselves by changing their system or doing something else. We can't be expected to give them any more help than we already have."

Senator McCarran (D-Nev.), a member of the Appropriations Committee, said he agrees that "we can't go any further along with them."
"We have been pouring out our money to them for years and they are in worse condition than they were when the war ended," he said.
Will Get Eyeglasses
New York, July 7 (AP)—Under a New York contract, more than 2,000 A.F.L. butchers and members of their families will get eyeglasses free—if they need them.
The contract providing for eye tests and free glasses was signed yesterday by the Butchers Local 174 and the Meat Trade Institute, representing 100 wholesalers. Jo-
